A semi-official communication, issued by the Vatican to-day, says that the relations with Portugal are normal.

King Rescued.
Cortes, 18th of August, 7.—King Alfonso appeared reassured by the cheerful news to-day from San Sebastian. It is understood that the Pope has written him an important autograph letter on the subject of the clerical conflict.

The King made his customary round of social calls to-day. His plans are unchanged, and he will go with Queen Victoria to Eton Hall on Wednesday as the guest of the Duke of Westminster, remaining there until Friday.

Demonstration Broken Up.
Barcelona, August 7.—A clerical demonstration at Sabadell, in Catalonia, was broken up to-day by anti-clericals. A demonstration intervened and stopped the disorder. One person was wounded.

King George Approves.
Madrid, August 7.—The Correspondencia asserts that King George wrote to the British ambassador at Madrid approving the Spanish government's attitude on the religious question, and that he personally expressed the same view to King Alfonso.

Paris, August 7.—The San Sebastian correspondent of the Echo de Paris says there is a feeling in government circles that negotiations with the Vatican will now take a new and favorable turn.

KILL STAGE DRIVER; LOSE LOOT OF GOLD

Mexicans, Ambushed Behind Rock, Stop Silver City Coach as It Breasts Divide.

El Paso, Tex., August 7.—For the second time in two weeks the Merriott stage was held up yesterday and robbed on the Mesquite-Silver City stage line in New Mexico. The bandits, who are thought to be two Mexicans, hid themselves behind a large boulder in Confidence Pass, the steepest part of the mountain road.

As the stage drew up to the divide, they shot from ambush Jose Dominguez, the Mexican driver, took the strong box keys from his pocket, and seized $20,000 in gold and silver from the chest. The mail sacks and express packages were also looted.

The stage was then started down the road toward Glenwood, the horses galloping frantically as the robbers shot behind them. The bullion was taken to a mountain path near the road, where the silver was separated from the gold and cached for the time being. The escape across the mountain.

The robbery was discovered by Jake House, the stage driver, waiting at Glenwood to take the stage into Silver City.

As soon as he saw the driverless horses dash up the corral he gave the alarm, and with a posse started back to Confidence Divide. There the Mexican driver was found dead with a bullet through his head, and a short distance away the silver bullion was discovered by the side of the road.

Headed by the territorial rangers, Deel and Wright, a heavily-armed posse set out up the mountain after the two men and the alarm was spread to all parts of the district. Miners in scanty attire started in search of the robbers and began scouring the mountain side.

The men were pressed so closely that they have been forced to abandon their ore. It was recovered by the rangers, and was brought back to the mining camp. It is the property of the Socorro Mines Company and the El Estero Mining Company, which were making their weekly shipment from the mines to Silver City for shipment to New York.

As the United States mails have been tampered with the posse has been strengthened by the Federal authorities from Silver City, and the entire mountain will be searched for the man.

The same stage was held up last week and three women passengers robbed of $150.

Jap Schooner Captured.
Victoria, B. C., August 7.—The Japanese schooner Kamo was captured by a Russian patrol cruiser of the Copper Islands late last month, according to news received here to-day. When the schooner was apprehended, one of the crew was killed and landing at the seal rookeries under cover of fog. The cruiser towed the schooner to Vladivostok, where the crews were imprisoned.

Warn Negroes to Move Away
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Newport News, Va., August 7.—Serious trouble exists in the Virginia section of this city seems likely to occur unless negroes who have occupied houses in that neighborhood, formerly exclusively a white residential section, heed warnings that have been given them to move. This morning the half dozen or more dwellings in which the negroes live were found empty, covered with placards, printed in red, reading:

"Negro, it is time to move! If you can't move to-day, you had better move to-morrow."

The posting of the placards, presumably by white citizens living in the vicinity, follows the refusal of the negroes to order a request that they arrange to move out of the neighborhood made by a committee of white men several days ago.

The white people are very much wrought up over the invasion of their section by negroes, and some of the leaders are quoted as saying that the negroes have been given their last notice.

NO FEAR OF REVOLT DISTURBS ALFONSO

King Enjoying Himself in England in Spite of Crisis in Spain.

REAL DANGER IN CARLISTS

So Says Archer, Just From Scene. If Army Is Faithful, Dynasty Is Safe.

London, August 7.—King Alfonso is apparently not in the least alarmed by the reports of imminent bloodshed in his dominions. Ever since his arrival in England he has given himself up with characteristic thoroughness to the enjoyment of the sports and pastimes he has loved since boyhood, and on Monday he purposes to go to Eaton Hall as the guest of the Duke of Westminster for the polo festival held there annually.

In London there is little expectation that the young monarch's holiday will be spoiled by any very serious developments.

William Archer, who has just returned from a visit to Spain, aptly notes that all Spanish revolutions hitherto have been military revolutions. The Barcelona outbreak of last year was the first attempt at popular revolution which has occurred in Spain, and it was unsuccessful because the people failed to win over the soldiers to their side, despite the fact that one great cause of discontent was dissatisfaction with the system of military service.

When he was asked if Alfonso was popular, Mr. Archer said that this was not an easy question to answer, as there was no enthusiasm for him.

"On the other hand," he said, "I cannot say that I discovered much strong feeling against him."

Danger Is From Carlists.
"I believe," continued Mr. Archer, "that the danger of the situation is that the fight with the Carlists may give strength to the Carlist party of extreme legitimism and extreme clericalism. Although all clericals are Carlists, it is safe to say that all Carlists are clericals, and this rupture with Rome may alienate a considerable section of the clerical party from the Alfonso dynasty and throw them into the Carlists' arms."

What may result from the rupture depends, I think, almost entirely on the army. If the army remains solidly faithful to the present regime, that regime, in one form or another, is probably secure; but if the loyalty of the army were undermined anything might happen."

Letters from an impartial source in Spain indicate that the present deadlock with the Vatican is only a trifle of strength. The eventual success of Premier Canalejas in his resistance to the Vatican's opposition to a reduction of the number and privileges of the religious orders, which now seems probable, will be followed up by a policy of curtailment of the ecclesiastical power.

Decided anti-clericalism, such as marked the recent history of France, is improbable, for Spain is a much more Catholic country than France, and the bonds between the governing classes and the Roman Catholic Church are too strong to be broken all at once.

Canalejas's Popularity Grows.
Senor Canalejas, so far as he has gone, has increased the popularity of the government with all save the extreme clericals. King Alfonso's approval, whatever it may be worth, also counts for the ministry.

Don Jaime has shown himself to be cooler headed than his supporters. A Carlist insurrection at the present stage of his organization could, in the opinion of most people qualified to judge, result in nothing but useless bloodshed, and its suppression would be both speedy and severe.

The Spanish army could easily account for a rising of the Carlist peasants; and, as is pointed out by a well-informed writer on Spanish affairs, there is great improbability in the risk of anxiety as to the attitude of the army, for the grievances of the peasant conscripts are against the middle and upper classes, which evade conscription by money payments, and those classes are largely clerical.

ROMANCE OVER, FOR BUSINESS NOW

Widow Wants Reward for Capture of Joseph Wendling.

LEAVES FOR LOUISVILLE

Wife's Jealousy of Rival May Secure Evidence for State.

Kansas City, Mo., August 7.—Mrs. Cora Munee, the milliner of Hume, Mo., for the love of whom Joseph Wendling, accused of the murder of a time-keeper, in Louisville, Ky., betrayed his whereabouts to the Louisville police, left Kansas City with Wendling and his captors to-day for Louisville. She will be a witness in the murder case against the man who painted word pictures for her of his chateau in France, and wanted to make her Mrs. Wendling.

Mrs. Munee is interested in the division in the rewards aggregating about $8,000 offered for the arrest of the supposed slayer of the eight-year-old niece of Frank Pehr, the wealthy brewer.

"I don't want to see that smiling Frenchman," she told the officers. "Please keep him out of my sight. His attentions might have been interesting once, but not now. I don't feel the least bit romantic. I'm here on business."

Mrs. Munee was ushered into the Polman and Wheeler place prisoner, his hands cuffed in his iron sat smiling out of a window at the curious crowd below. The widow gave the accused man one furtive glance and fled nervously to a seat on the other side of the car.

Wendling, smiling and contented, looked at his wife with interest as she talked with the officers. During the half-hour the train remained in Kansas City, no word passed between the widow and the prisoner.

It is believed that it is the plan of the Louisville detectives to use the Missouri widow in drawing out Wendling's deserted wife as a witness for the State. Mrs. Wendling has stood by her husband persistently, refusing to believe in his guilt. The theory is that the easy question to use the Missouri widow in drawing out Wendling's deserted wife as a witness for the State.

Mrs. Munee's service in the capture of Wendling consisted in her supplying Inspector Carney with his address in Vallejo, Cal., by means of a picture post card he had written from that point asking her to write.

with his revolver. Mr. Ivins was not arrested.

Warrant for Cutting.
A warrant for Mr. Cutting's arrest was sworn out within a few minutes and was served by Constable Patrick Quinn, Jr. Mr. Cutting raised no objections other than words. Two charges were brought against him, one of assault and the other of carrying a concealed weapon.

About this time, while the four remaining raiders were in the room, Fred Olney, an attorney, entered the place and called on the Superior Court judge to issue a warrant for Mr. Olney.

Mr. Olney was informed in the negative. Mr. Cross had taken the money he found in the drawers about the room, and Mr. Olney asked him to give a receipt for it. This the constable refused to do.

Mr. Olney went out and was gone about an hour. Constable Cross told the others of his party they might as well go out to get assistance in some way, so that they could confiscate the gambling apparatus.

One of the waiters stole one of the three roulette wheels in this manner while Mr. Cross was busy chasing another man. One of the windows in the room, opening on to the street, had been opened by the constable so he could call for help if it was needed.

One of the waiters called his attention to the fact that it was getting cold, and that he would shut the window. While Mr. Cross was keeping him from the window another waiter stole a second roulette wheel. The remaining wheel, Mr. Cross placed behind him for safekeeping and stood guard.

Constable Cross, having been left alone for a minute, called out the window for some one to express a warning to take away the stuff he found. This man, however, notified Assistant Attorney-General Harry P. Cross, who has a summer home at Wakefield, telling him of what was going on.

The Assistant Attorney-General told this man over the telephone to get Chief Caswell, instruct him to assist Constable Cross and to force an entrance, if necessary, into the establishment and seize the goods that might be found there.

Stand Guard Till Noon.
Constable Cross stood guard in the room until almost noon. He would have remained longer, but about that time some one swore out a warrant against the waiter who had stolen the first roulette wheel.

Was served by Constable Patrick Quinn, Jr. about noon, and Constable Cross, a prisoner, was taken out of the building. His departure was the signal for the gamblers to get busy and hide their apparatus. Three large automobiles were at the door of the

CRAZED BY LIQUOR, DOES DOUBLE MURDER

Asheville, N. C., August 7.—News was received here to-day of a tragedy in which two men lost their lives and another was seriously wounded, and may die. According to the meagre reports received, Lex Batties, of Murphy, while under the influence of liquor, went into the Jenkins Hotel, and without warning opened fire on a group of young men who were congregated there for a social gathering. He shot through the heart and instantly killed, and J. J. Simpson, of Rogersville, Tenn., died to-day about 4 o'clock. Hugh Johnson, of Marble, N. C., who was shot and seriously wounded, is now in the hospital, but his wounds are said to be dangerous.

Hyde, who was studying for the ministry, and William J. Hyde, of Knoxville, Tenn., were spending their vacations in Murphy.

Batties was arrested and is now in jail at Murphy.

DANGEROUS FIRE IN SOUTHSIDE

Considerable damage was done this morning to the store of R. A. Bowen, Thirtieth and Main streets, South Richmond, which caught fire shortly before 2 o'clock. The fire originated in a room for carbonic acid poisoning, that the local engine company was unable to cope with the blaze, and a company No. 2 was sent to the scene. The fire was gotten under control, but not until after the store adjoining had also suffered from the flames.

Both properties are owned by Mr. Bowen. The fire, though under control, has caused a loss of about $10,000. Everything is covered by insurance.

MOREHEAD FACTION BOLTS CONVENTION

Gathering of Republicans in Cumberland is a Stormy Occasion—Both Crowds Elected Delegates.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Favor by a vote of forty-six to thirty, the Cumberland county convention, to elect delegates to the State judicial and congressional conventions, met here yesterday. It was a stormy occasion. Pandemonium reigned supreme, and many of the delegates were in a bad temper.

At the time the delegates were elected, the speakers were mounted on the lawyers' tables in front of the judge's stand in the courthouse, while speakers on the side could be seen, but not heard. The only issue was the Morehead faction, the Duncan faction, and the Morehead faction.

The Morehead faction claimed that the convention was called to order by C. C. McLeellan, county chairman, a Duncan man, with C. R. Wakefield, secretary.

The credentials committee was a bone of contention, but the Duncan faction won out on the adoption of its report by a vote of forty-six to thirty.

When the Morehead faction bolted, and formed a convention of their own. The Duncan faction elected uninstructed delegates to the State congressional and judicial conventions, but claim that the delegation to the State congressional convention is not valid.

The Morehead faction bolted on what they claim is an infraction of the Republican plan of organization. County Chairman C. C. McLeellan refused to abdicate as permanent chairman, when the Morehead faction claimed that C. C. McLeellan was not a Republican.

The Morehead faction, with C. C. Bullard as chairman, and Wm. Nordan secretary, elected a full set of delegates to the State congressional and judicial conventions, the State delegates being instructed for Morehead.

HEAVY CIVIL DOCKET FOR SUPERIOR COURT

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Wadesboro, N. C., August 7.—A special term of the Superior Court for Anson county will convene to-morrow for the trial of civil cases, with Judge J. Crawford Biggs on the bench. The docket is largely made up of cases being already on the docket, and the special term was necessary in order to relieve the situation. This term of court will convene on Tuesday morning. It is expected that at least sixty cases will be disposed of during the term.

The day was very hot, and the cases were up to-morrow, and is a damage suit brought against the Seaboard Air Line Railway by F. B. Elmore, administrator of the estate of W. H. Whitaker. The suit asks for $20,000 for the death of Whitaker, who was a car cleaner, and stationed at Hamlet. Whitaker was struck by a freight train on the night of March 5, 1909, while at work in the Hamlet yards, and instantly killed.

ASSAULTS HIS MOTHER AND BREAKS HER ARM

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Petersburg, Va., August 7.—Timothy Harnett, aged eighteen, a young white man, assaulted and beat his mother, Ellen Harnett, at her home this morning. He threw her down, broke her left arm in two places and inflicted severe bodily injuries. Young Harnett is in jail, but having been refused.

Charlottesville, Va., August 7.—Harry E. Haislip, a young white man residing in the southern part of the county, was found guilty of criminal assault by a jury in the Circuit Court yesterday with a recommendation of punishment of eight years in the penitentiary.

Haislip was charged with assaulting Ruth, the ten-year-old daughter of Albert Robinson, who is a tenant at

DISASTROUS BLAZE FOLLOWS EXPLOSION

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Christiansburg, Va., August 7.—Fire, following an explosion of mysterious origin, broke out simultaneously at 6 o'clock this evening in the Cambria Hotel, one of the most widely known in Southwest Virginia, about a mile from here, and in the adjoining building, the residence of C. A. Campbell, and before it could be gotten under control, had destroyed the hotel, the Campbell residence, a store owned by Harvey E. Akers, and a barber shop owned by E. S. Tate. The Cambria Bank Building, the Surface Wholesale Grocery Building and the stores of E. A. Myers and Charles Walther were badly damaged. The total loss will reach $10,000. The insurance amounts to $4,000.

A. C. Barnes, manager of the hotel, was desperately ill of typhoid fever, on the third floor of the hotel building, and was barely rescued. His condition is very critical.

The structure, which was a three-story frame structure, was well filled with guests, but all escaped without injury. The fire department from Roanoke was summoned, but was turned back when, at 9:30 o'clock, the flames had been brought under control by means of a hose which had been run to the factory, some distance away.

The flames broke forth instantaneously following the explosion, and seemed to immediately envelop both buildings. The authorities are investigating.

COMMITTEE WILL SET VILE DISPUTE

Situation in Sixth Congressional District to Be Considered.

Raleigh, N. C., August 7.—State officers and political leaders interested in the adjustment of the middle in the Sixth Congressional District, in which Congressman H. L. Godwin and O. L. Clark are both claiming the nomination, express the greatest satisfaction at the personnel of the special committee appointed by the State Chairman, A. H. Eller, to investigate and report with recommendations to the State committee as to whether there has been any nomination, who the nominee is and, of there has been none, what shall be done about it.

This special committee, headed by Chairman Eller, consists of ex-Governor T. J. Jarvis, Greenville; ex-Governor C. B. Aycock, Raleigh; Judge A. C. Avery, Morganton; Hon. R. A. Doughton, Alleghany; Theodore F. Clark, Salisbury; and J. D. Crump, of the board, stated yesterday that as Dr. Smith's successor had not been decided on, while several names are being considered, Dr. Smith will go to Chapel Hill about September 1.

Home for Aged Masons.
A call is issued to town of North Carolina, which wish to get in the contest for the location to put in bids for the North Carolina Home for Aged and Indigent Masons and members of the Eastern Star, the name of the institution to be located in Eastern Star Home. The definite movement for such an institution was launched at the annual convocation of the North Carolina Grand Lodge of Masons last January. Grand Master R. H. Hackett, of the Grand Lodge of Masons, is ex-officio chairman of the board, which comprises L. M. Clymer, Greensboro; Dr. F. M. Winchester, Charlotte; W. W. White, Mooresville; Rev. A. J. Parker, Louisville; Rev. A. J. Travis, Halifax; Mrs. W. H. Woodbury, Murphy, and W. H. McLaughlin, Laurinburg.

It is an interesting fact that there is still living in the northern section of this city the negro who started the first fire in the State House, when it was completed, was back in the thirties. His name is Charles Hinton. He was the body servant of State Treasurer Hinton, and says that he built the first fire in the huge fireplace of the State Treasurer's office. These fireplaces were the only means of heating the building for many years. The old State House was burned in 1821, and the present stone capitol was about ten years in building.

SOCIALISTS HOLD LARGE MEETING

State Organization Formed From Seventeen Independent Clubs in Virginia.

Seventeen clubs of Socialists met yesterday morning in Dabney's Hall, and perfected a permanent State organization, with M. K. Kilduff, of Newport News, as State secretary. Representatives came from all parts of the State, and the meeting was of a highly enthusiastic nature. A committee of five was also elected, the committee's business being of an executive character.

There were many new recruits, and the members, and allegiance to the International Socialist party, which has members in every county in the world, was renewed.

Thomas J. Payne, one of the members, in speaking of the Socialist party, said that it had a long history, and that it was rapidly growing in strength. The principles of the party are public ownership of the means of production, and the division of the profit of the few will be divided among the people—that is to say, the wage-earners. In the past few years Eugene V. Debs has been the Socialist candidate for the presidency.

The meeting yesterday began at 10 o'clock, and lasted well into the afternoon.

AMBULANCE WAS KEPT IN ACTION

Responded to 298 Calls During Month of July.

SAVED 8 WOULD-BE SUICIDES

Life or Death Often Hangs on Speed With Which Calls Are Answered.

Some idea of the work performed by the Ambulance of the City Hospital while on ambulance duty may be gained from the fact that the three young surgeons—Drs. Collins, Turman and Harshbarger—answered 298 calls in the month of July. The calls come at all hours of the day and night, and the physician who happens to be on ambulance duty at the time can have but little rest. So with the ambulance drivers, of whom there are two—John Drake and Roy Ford—for they sleep with one eye and an ear open all the time.

The 298 calls answered last month, five were heat prostrations, three were for fractured skulls, three were for fractured extremities (legs and arms), three were for bichloride of mercury poisoning—a favorite method of suicide among a certain class of people—two for carbolic acid poisoning, and one each for iodine and arsenic poisoning. The other calls were for minor injuries. Though there were eight attempts at suicide during the month, the ambulance surgeons arrived in time to save each life. Of the patients treated and left there were 187. The City Hospital received forty-nine, seven were taken to other hospitals, and nineteen were taken home. There were two asphyxiations, which did not result seriously, and one attempt at opium poisoning, an easy death, but one rarely attempted by would-be suicides.

Last Year's Figures.
In July, 1909, the city surgeons answered 233 calls for first aid to the injured. In that month there were nineteen heat prostrations, one fractured skull, four fractures of the extremities, one bichloride of mercury poisoning, two carbolic acid poisonings, one arsenic poisoning. Out of that number 145 were treated and left, twenty-six were taken to the City Hospital, seven to other hospitals, and twenty-five were taken home. There were two asphyxiations, one concentrated iye poisoning and one opium poisoning.

The work for the City Hospital is steadily increasing with the growth of the city, and few who are not acquainted with the arduous they must pick their way along crowded thoroughfares at the best speed they can make, and often be criticized for violating the speed ordinance.
